Skate beneath Canary Wharf's twinkling skyline and treat yourself to one of London's most captivating winter experiences. There's no chance of rain cancelling play as the rink is covered with our magnificent roof, so come rain or shine, the British weather won't stop this year's fun winter day out.

Skaters and spectators looking to warm up post session can enjoy a drink and nibbles in the popular Off Piste alpine rink side bar, which has been recently revamped and is now fully enclosed to keep out the cold. With a brand-new menu offering light bites and seasonal cocktails, Off Piste will also be home to a quiz night and live music making it the perfect place to host a party, or catch up with friends this winter. You can make the most of the last live music session on Wednesday 22 February where Sister Sax performs over two skate sessions.

Also, what better way to dust off the cobwebs than by learning a new skill and competing with friends or colleagues at our Curling Challenge? The tournament will run between Tuesday 7th & Wednesday 8th February and is open to all abilities. Time to start brushing up on your sliding skills...

Graphic Rewilding is an ongoing art project created by artists Lee Baker & Catherine Borowski. The goal of this project is to create large-scale artworks that introduce the diversity and colours of the natural world into urban environments. With these images they hope to inspire and encourage people to connect a little more with nature. The plants and insects that feature on the walls were picked by the artists to highlight Canary Wharf Group's expansive work with the Eden Project.
