HAWKSMOOR

Seating up to twenty people, the private dining room is named after local legend Queenie Watts. Back in the early sixties rowdy dockers, gangsters (the Krays and more), celebrities and thrill-seeking high society flocked to see Queenie – singer, songwriter, actor and self-confessed bawdy landlady (think Peggy Mitchell meets Joni Mitchell) – and she welcomed them all. “I just love people. People are life, aren’t they?”

The private dining room offers a range of sharing menu options available featuring classic Hawksmoor dishes and the very best dry-aged beef, sustainable seafood and seasonal farm produce.
